GO TO BED

Most owners want to be able to ask their dogs to go and lie down quietly. This makes entertaining your guests or working from home more relaxing as you can easily send your dog away when you don't want him demanding attention or jumping on you.

| | |
|---|---|
| | INTERACTIVE GAME Dog and Owner |
| LOCATION | Start near your puppy's bed and then in other places where you would like him to |
| LEVEL OF DIFFICULTY | ☆☆ Moderate brain tester A 'Down' command will be useful. |
| PROPS | Puppy bed, treats and chewies. |

Unfortunately, sending a dog to his bed is often done in the form of a telling off rather than a fun game. If you spend a little time teaching your dog to rush to his bed and lie down to earn a reward, you will find him more reliable, easier to live with and you can also use this technique for other training tasks.

You can choose to teach your puppy to go and lie on his bed. This must be a place that he feels happy about going to, so reward him well for using it when told to. Start with sessions during which your puppy is unlikely to be distracted. You'll be more successful if you practise during quieter times rather than only when he's wound up or excited.

LURE AND REWARD

1 Begin with your puppy standing beside you while you crouch down a foot or so from his bed. Toss a nice treat into the bed to act as a lure to start the training.

2 Allow your puppy to go forwards after the treat. When he climbs into his bed praise him and throw in another treat. To practise again either wait until he leaves his bed or call him out and repeat the routine.

3 At this stage it doesn't matter if your puppy is just standing on his bed or lying down when you reward him. Your first aim is to teach him that going to that place is fun.
